

WOMEN'S HISTORY MONTH

WOLF GREENFIELD WOMEN'S HISTORY MONTH PRACTICE GROUP LEADERS Q&A 2022

Helen C. Lockhart, PhD

Co-chair, Biotechnology Practice

Q: *What has been the best career advice you have received?

A: For me the best career advice was to seek out critical feedback and not take it personally. When you work hard and strive to be the best that you can be in your career it can be very difficult to face your shortcomings. It was critical for me to learn how to listen objectively and make changes based on feedback.

Q: *What factors impact a woman's ability to lead others?

A: A strong support system is the most important factor. If a woman has a mentor(s) (male or female) and supportive colleagues at all levels within an organization the path to success is achievable. A collaborative environment can make a big difference.

Q: *What are the benefits to having women in leadership?

A: Women can bring a different perspective to leadership. They are more attuned to issues that face women. When women are involved in decision making they have the opportunity to create an environment that is more equitable for women. Having a woman in a leadership position can also inspire young women and show them that there is a path to succeed within the company.

Q: *What project or accomplishment has been the most significant in your career?

A: I don't have one accomplishment that rises above others. The most satisfactory aspect of my career has been when I am able to help clients find creative solutions to solve the problems they face.